

Awards Bollywood Legend Dev Anand Won In His Career-Spanning 65 Years

Dev Anand was one of the most notable entertainers in Bollywood. He has supposedly accomplished more than 110 motion pictures and has played the lead job over 90 films. His vocation as an entertainer, chief, and maker traversed over sixty years.

His film Guide was India's first nomination in Oscars. Dev Anand is a beneficiary of numerous public and worldwide honours. The FilmIndia App, A Bollywood industry app, has brought you a list of the entertainer's honours, acknowledgements, and awards.

National Awards

Dev Anand was respected with the Padma Bhushan Award, India's third most reputed civilian Award, in 2001 by the government of India. Exceptionally after one year, he was granted India's most elevated honour for artistic greatness, the Dadasaheb Phalke award.

He likewise won the Punjab Ratan Award for his remarkable commitment to workmanship and amusement in 2007. Just as Rashtriya Gaurav Award, Dev Anand in 2010 won the Phalke Ratna Award offered by the Dadasaheb Phalke Academy. The Madhya Pradesh government awarded him with the Rashtriya Kishore Kumar Samman in 2011.

Industry Awards and Honours

He has also won many honours, including two Filmfare grants for the best entertainer, his motion pictures Guide, and Kala Pani. Earlier in 1977, he bagged the Mumbai Academy of Moving Images ward for his extraordinary contributions to the industry.

The 2000s brought several memorable events for Dev Anand as he grabbed the Film Goers' Mega Movie Maestro of the Millennium Award in Mumbai at the beginning of the decade.

Later in 2001, at the Nassau Coliseum (New York), he was granted an Evergreen Star of the Millennium Award at the Zee Gold Bollywood Awards and a Special Screen Award for his remarkable work in the field of the Bollywood industry.

In 2004, the Federation of Indian Chamber of Commerce and Industry (FICCI) recognized his contribution to the Indian entertainment industry and awarded him the Living Legend Award and the Legend of Indian Cinema Award. Followed by this, He was Awarded the IIJS Solitaire Awards in 2008 and the Legend Award in 2009.